

A TYPOLOGY FOR THE STUDY OF RECREATIONAL DECISION STYLES

(VIRGINIA POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE AND STATE UNIVERSITY)

David L. Groves

Harvey Kahalas

The purpose of this discussion is to review some of the traditional decision theory positions and postulate a typology for the study of recreational decisions. The proposed typology is a synthesis of content and process approaches and offers a method for quantifying information about recreational decisions.